Rush Keeps Theta Growing

It has changed but little over the years. Analyzed, refined, honed to a fine point of preparedness, made less expensive most places by panhellenic consensus, and for better or worse condensed into a shorter time period, rush nevertheless boils down to a concentrated effort to bring members and rushees together. "Getting to know you" sums it up. The end result is the interaction of the mutual selection process where the rush-ee's choice and the members' choices match to produce a new generation of Thetas.

Theta is indeed growing. Last years rush efforts brought an eleven percent increase in new members into the fraternity.

Today's collegians are as creative about entertaining prospective members as the many generations that preceded them. But they are far more informal. Casual dress, simple refreshments, lots of conversation and always skits, song and costumes, to help put rushees at ease. Members of Pi chapter at Albion contributed these pictures from their rush scrapbook.

Rush is still concentrated in the early fall on most campuses . . . but year around informal bidding is permitted and encouraged to enable chapters to replace members lost during the year. Maintaining a full membership is essential to chapter stability. For exact dates of rush, see chapter listings commencing Pg. 8.

Dear Theta Alumna,

"Theta for a lifetime" is a familiar phrase to all of us. Although ours is a college-oriented organization, over ninety percent of our members are alumnae. As pledges we accepted the commitment to work for the advancement and welfare of Kappa Alpha Theta. That commitment was for a lifetime.

Membership selection is one of the most vital procedures promoting the advancement and welfare of the fraternity. Alumnae have the opportunity to share in this procedure. While our collegians select the fraternity's new members, we alumnae have the responsibility and privilege of recommending prospective members.

To expedite the sending of rush recommendations to our college chapters and make the system more effective there are approximately 600 rush recommendation boards and over 500 authorized rush representatives. However, a most important person in our recommendation procedure is YOU! Our alumnae rush personnel and college chapters depend greatly on you to write recommendations for highly qualified young women whom you know.

Our recommendation system has served the fraternity very well and is a primary factor in Theta's continuing tradition of excellence. With your continued commitment to the fraternity, including your participation in our recommendation system, our fraternity's future will also be one of excellence.

Loyally,
Kahla A. Latta

Her Life Is Not An Easy One

September, 1977

Dear DMS,

Fie on you who wrote the article in the rush issue last summer entitled, "Recommendations . . . Because You Care." As an alumna who has submitted a number of recommendations over the years in spite of all discouragements; as a run of the mill alumna who has no special pull, I find this article to be ill-founded, meretricious, in fact wholly false and misleading. "I bite my thumb at you!" The only girl from our town I didn't want to recommend was snapped up with cries of joy while my friend's daughter, who is charming, smart and talented was cut by the Thetas after the first party. Don't tell me to write recommendations!

*Signed,
Enraged in Florida*

Dear Enraged,

Fie on you for giving up your responsibility to write recs. There are approximately seven women recommended to our chapters for every one woman pledged. Naturally, not every girl you recommend is going to be pledged, but if you care enough, you should sell the Greek idea and then let the chapter sell Theta. Chapters do make mistakes and good women are missed. If you think someone would make a super Theta, don't just send the form listing her accomplishments. Let your enthusiasm jump off the page! Don't settle for words, try introducing her to collegians, Thetas included, and let them see for themselves how great she is. The next girl you recommend may be the ONE!

Loyally,
DMS

Dear D.M.S.,

My daughter is going off to college next fall, and naturally, as a Theta, I hope she will be a Theta also.

Many of my friends tell me a legacy doesn't have a chance, that other groups won't rush her because she is a legacy, and even the Thetas may hold it against her. What shall I do?

Loyally.

a concerned mother

Dear DMS,

In August, 1976, I wrote a recommendation for a friend of my daughter. Yesterday, March 4, 1978, I received a nice note from the recommendations chairman of XX chapter, Thanking me for my interest in their rush. She apologized for taking so long to acknowledge my recommendation, but she hurt her arm in a skiing accident the winter of '77, or maybe '79! Is this standard practice?

Signed,
Impatient

Dear DMS,

I am the recommendations chairman for ZZ Chapter and have tried very hard this year to get recommendations before rush begins so that we can use them to pinpoint our best prospects and learn how best to sell them on Theta. At least, that is what we were told to do last summer at Leadership Conference. The trouble is, I have written some rush recommendation boards three or four times and have heard nothing. I even sent one of our chapter members, when she was home on vacation, to visit this one recommendation board chairman, but I still don't have recommendations from her. She said, "Let me know when you are ready to pledge, and I will send the rec." Doesn't she know that won't do us any good at all? How can we use the information on recs to sell Theta, when it doesn't arrive until the end of rush?

Loyally,
Frustrated Rec. Chairman

Dear Concerned Mother,

I wish there were an easy answer. With an increasing number of legacies going through rush each year, it becomes more difficult for the legacy, her family, and the chapter. Many of our chapters have more legacies participating in rush than they have quota places.

Our chapters do realize that legacies bring with them a special knowledge of Theta, and that they are generally strong, contributing members. It is impossible to pledge all of them. The best approach is to encourage your daughter to "Go Greek." While we are competitive with other NPC groups, we all realize that we have similar goals and purposes and adhere to the same high standards. It is better to let your daughter know that if she has difficulty choosing between two groups, and one is Theta, it would mean a great deal to you, for her to pledge Theta, but chapters are not the same and she must make the choice. You both must realize that if a chapter is not able to pledge your daughter, it is not an indication of failure on her part or on the part of the chapter. No chapter should be expected to pledge a rushee just because she is a legacy, and no legacy should be led to believe she must pledge a group because of the legacy tie. Mutual choice is the key and it makes for the happiest chapters and daughters. Good luck to your daughter next fall.

Loyally,
DMS

Dear Impatient,

Some alumnae would tell you you were one of the lucky ones. You did receive acknowledgment! XX Chapter will find itself waiting impatiently for more recommendations, if it continues to be so irresponsible in acknowledging the efforts of alumnae like you, who take the time and interest to voluntarily recommend young women. Let us hope the recommendations chairmen of the future are not allowed to go skiing before finishing their jobs. Usually a chapter will wait to acknowledge until rush is finished, so they may inform you what your rushee pledged. Nineteen months is a little long!

Loyally,
DMS

Dear Frustrated,

Aren't we all! Think of it in terms of frustration being good for your personal development. There really is very little you can do to get recommendations in before rush begins until all chapters use them the way you have tried. Recommendations are not an admission ticket. They are valuable tools to help us assess our customers' needs and desires and to show us the best approach to sell our product.

Continue to use the Town System and contact alumnae personally to sell them on the idea of sending recs early. When you get to be an alumna, write recs!

Loyally,
DMS

It Started With A RECOMMENDATION

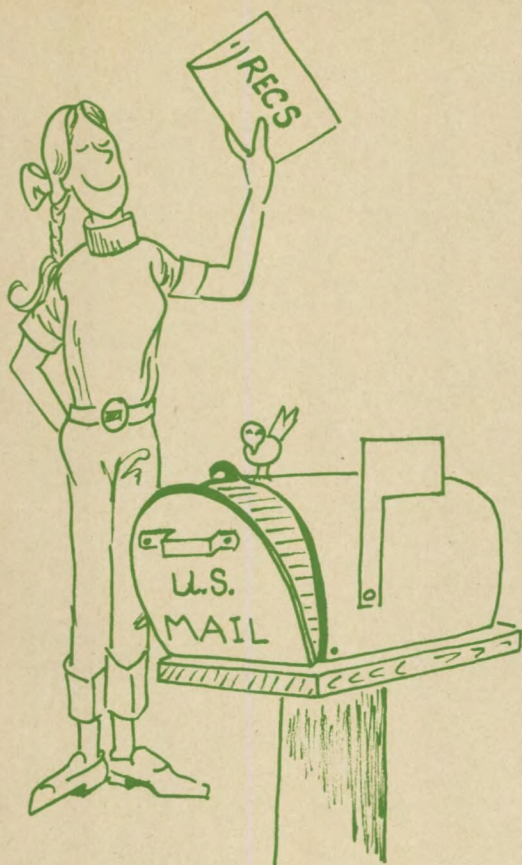

We all knew that this was the year that our 100,000 initiate would be added to the membership roles. The editor waited with an approaching deadline. Central Office waited for the word from Data Science. Finally the computer did its thing and lights went on as the name of Nancy Hardesty came up. January 28, she was initiated at Delta Eta chapter. Her excited mother is Madeline Armbruster Hardesty, Alpha Upsilon, Washburn.

Tips for Writing Recommendations

1. Send them early! Many schools have rush in August; recs are needed in early summer.
2. Attach a picture of a rushee; it helps to identify her. DO NOT ask a girl or her parent you do not know for a picture. You may leave the wrong impression.
3. Fill out the form as completely as possible. Give a grade average or the exact rank and size of her graduating class.
4. Give examples of leadership or above the ordinary contributions to the organizations to which she belongs. Describe clubs. Unknown organizations are not helpful in assessing her capabilities.
5. Comment on her character and personality in terms that best describe the girl. The chapter wants to know how to rush her.
6. Give her fraternity background, which indicates an awareness of the system and its advantages. A legacy is a sister, daughter, or granddaughter of a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.
7. Do not worry about whether or not the girl says she is going through rush; she may change her mind.

Use the form printed below or secure membership recommendation blank from Central Office or your local Rush Recommendation Board.

Founders' Scholarship Winner Honored

Julie Zeller, immediate past president of Alpha chapter is shown receiving a plaque honoring her achievements as recipient of the Betty Locke Hamilton Foundation Scholarship.

Presenting the plaque from the Greencastle alumnae and the Alpha Advisory Board is Mrs. Richard F. Rosser (Donna Eyssen), Gamma deuteron, wife of DePauw's new president. Donna Rosser is an Ohio Wesleyan Theta where she graduated cum laude as a Fulbright Scholar in 1951.

She and members of the Greencastle alumnae, Alpha Advisory Board, Alpha House Corporation, and special invited guests honored Julie with a coffee at the chapter house. Julie plans to enter law school next year with an eventual goal of politics.

Denise A. Bittner, Alpha Xi

Lucia Jenny

President of the Sedgwick County, KS Medical Auxiliary is Lucia Novak Jenny, Alpha Iota. The auxiliary is involved in vision screening, training for babysitters and promotion of medical-related careers. Mrs. Jenny's special interests include tutoring children with reading problems, painting, reading and playing tennis.

Sarah McManis, Γ^Δ with rescue van.

THETA CAPTAIN OF MEDIC I TEAM

The title of "captain" brings thoughts of athletics, debate teams and designation of military rank. At Gamma deutron, Ohio Wesleyan, the captain is Sarah McManis who heads the Ohio Wesleyan Auxiliary Rescue Squad, a student volunteer group, trained in emergency medical technology. In addition to this service commitment, Sarah has held the chapter office of treasurer for two years and maintains a high grade average.

Sarah became involved in the medical emergency aid program in her freshman year through a course offered by the Delaware, OH Fire Department jointly with Ohio Wesleyan University. A proficiency credit was earned for medical aspects of physical education. Her training consisted of 80 classroom hours, 10 hours in a hospital emergency room, and two hours of actual emergency runs. After passing a written and practical examination, Sarah McManis was certified as an Emergency-Medical Technician-Ambulance (EM T-A) for the State of Ohio.

As an active participant of the rescue squad, Sarah is required to ride 12 hours a month but so far she is averaging 30 hours a month.

Sarah is the only woman on an all male rescue crew, which becomes a great advantage when dealing with women who need emergency aid, particularly when they must be convinced that further treatment in a hospital is necessary.

Of the entire fire department, Sarah says, "The fire fighters spoil me. I'm one of the gang but the only woman in an all male environment. I tend to be pampered, but when the time comes to work, it is assumed I'll do my part. I do, and I love it!"

A HOUSEMOTHER SPEAKS FROM THE HEART

Nina E. Eckert was initiated into Kappa Alpha Theta at Beta Pi chapter at Michigan State more than fifty years ago. She proudly wears her pansy pin denoting fifty years of membership, and service to Kappa Alpha Theta. A loyal, participating member all those years, Mrs. Eckert's career as a housemother at Michigan State considerably broadened her perspective on Greek life. She had the opportunity to contribute to the development of young women in four different sororities, including the Thetas in her own Beta Pi chapter.

"I am always amazed at the girls' development in their four years on campus, and I know sorority life has added to this development," is the way Mrs. Eckert expresses the value of sorority membership. Mrs. Eckert's experience is confined to chapters which live in a chapter house and of this living arrangement Mrs. Eckert adds, "A sorority house is the finest place a college girl can live."

So convincing is Nina Eckert's testimony to the value of sorority membership that the Beta Pi chapter invited her to return to speak to rushees at preference parties last fall. Of course she was stressing Theta values, but rushees who heard her talk must have had their intentions to become a sorority woman confirmed. So this year at Beta Pi, longevity, the satisfaction of looking back, and experience took its place alongside the theme parties, the entertainment routines and getting-acquainted techniques.

She told the "about to become sorority members" that young women join a sorority to get the most out of college life . . . preparation for a career, adjustment to life in every way, learning to live in a group that has bound itself together for friendship and fun in a family-like atmosphere. Scholastic incentive, service to chapter projects, and most of all encouragement for excellence in all aspects of life, are fundamental in the sorority experience.

Nina Eckert didn't stop with the immediate advantage of sorority membership. From personal experience and from the heart she told of the bonds of friendship that last a lifetime. She recounted her experience helping to form the Theta Alumnae Club of Grand Rapids and the new Theta friendships made there that have lasted a lifetime. She told of living in a small town where there were only four Thetas and what their mutual friendship has meant all these years. She told of the opportunity for service which for her meant a term on the Beta Pi Corporation Board, and projects planned to further the Institute of Logopedics, to say nothing of the social aspects of long term friendships among women united in a common and shared bond.

"I believe strongly in the Greek system. My Theta bonds have enriched my life in many ways for many years," was Nina Eckert's closing note to the rushees.

Perhaps Beta Pi was saving the best for last, for as any successful rush chairman knows, the preference party is the "clincher."

FIRST LADY OF VIRGINIA

Thetas everywhere will be proud to know that Edwina Panzer Dalton, Beta Pi, Michigan State, is the new First Lady of Virginia and for the next four years will live in the historic Governor's Mansion in Capitol Square, Richmond.

Her husband, John N. Dalton, was inaugurated January fourteenth as Virginia's Governor. For the last four years while John served the state as a very effective and popular Lieutenant Governor, Eddy, as everyone knows her, made many friends. The Daltons have four children: Kathy, 20; Ted, 19; John, 17; and Mary Helen, 13.

Eddy has served as a member of the Virginia Commission on the Status of Women, serving as coordinator of the Bicentennial Scholarship Fund established by the Commission. This fund is designed primarily to secure greater educational opportunities for mature women and those planning to re-enter the job market.

Having served as State Chairman of the Cancer Crusade, Eddy is now a member of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Division of the American Cancer Society. She has been active in Radford, the Dalton's permanent home, as a hospital volunteer, PTA president, Woman's Club member and Baptist Church member.

"Her way for the present is prepared," says Mary Bland Armistead, Women's Editor of the Roanoke, VA Times and World News. "This week she stood as queen of a new lifestyle in the big hall of the governor's mansion, and welcomed guests. New doors opened for Dalton friends and office staffs, and that's the mere beginning.

"Only half a week into her new position, first lady, Eddy Dalton, presented awards in the Keep Virginia Beautiful effort, and will be honorary chairman of Richmond's Heart Fund Ball in two weeks.

"Her road in the future will be marked by other receptions, presentations and honorary leadership until 1982, when the guess is the road then will not lead to her Radford home.

"Eddy Dalton is known as a striver; undaunted and sure. Her methods work best in straight drive; neutrality is not tucked in her bonnet, and there's nothing downhill in her world." Virginia Miller Schricker, Alpha

Mary A. Gardner, journalism educator

JOURNALISM PROFESSOR HONORED

Mary A. Gardner, professor of journalism at Michigan State University is gathering honors again this year.

She is president-elect of the Association for Education in Journalism, in which she is scoring a first for women—and has been chosen by Women in Communications Inc. (formerly Theta Sigma Phi) to receive a 1978 National Headliner Award. The award, established in 1939, is given annually by the organization in recognition of outstanding achievement of some of its members.

Mary Gardner is a member of Alpha Gamma chapter, and Kappa Tau Alpha honorary journalism fraternity.

A colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, she has worked on newspapers in Minneapolis and Corpus Christi, and before joining the MSU faculty in 1966, she taught at the University of Texas and the University of Minnesota.

For five summers Dr. Gardner has been a consultant for El Norte a daily newspaper in Monterrey, Mexico, where she teaches young reporters and does critiques of the daily issues.

She holds degrees from Stephens College and Ohio State University, and received the Ph.D. degree from the University of Minnesota.

She received the first citation ever given a journalism educator by the Inter-American Press at its annual meeting held in Brazil in 1975.

CHAPTER SERVICE

Each Wednesday afternoon when Alpha Mu Thetas pile into cars and drive away from the campus to become leaders of the Woodhaven Girl Scout Troop, they are making it possible for a very special group of girls to take part in activities and learning experiences that most youngsters take for granted.

The Woodhaven Girl Scouts are teenage girls who are students at Woodhaven Christian Home for Exceptional Children. These scouts are mentally retarded or physically handicapped.

Alpha Mu has long been a leader among sororities at the University of Missouri and the chapters of Kappa Alpha Theta. Last April at the Greek Award banquet, Alpha Mu received the Outstanding Panhellenic Service Project Award for its long standing leadership of the Woodhaven Girl Scouts.

Goal setting and achieving is one of the secrets of their success . . . and that is how it happens that the scout troop has been the service project of Alpha Mu for more than 10 years. It helps to fulfill the service aspect of their chapter's goals.

Unlike other service projects engaged in to raise funds, the Girl Scout troop involves a gift of time and self rather than money.

The Theta leaders strive to have the girls earn four merit badges each semester. Having earned the Personal Health badge and the Hospitality badge, the Nature badge is a current project. Last fall they collected leaves, learned why leaves turn color in the fall, and have made leaf rubbings with crayons. They have also planted seeds and studied the fruits of various trees, not considered edible, such as acorns.

Jane Maune, Organizer of troop leaders, says planning projects and working with these scouts can be difficult. It's often hard to communicate with them and hold their interest. The girls have to be kept active all the time." There are some badge requirements the girls cannot complete so Jane has to alter them slightly. Because these girls cannot follow the regular badge requirements they are not a registered Girl Scout troop. The Alpha Mu Thetas would like to do something about that.

Last spring each class in the Alpha Mu chapter set up an entertainment booth in the driveway of the Theta house and had the Girls Scouts over for an afternoon of fun. Another time they held an Easter egg hunt and house cook-out with the Woodhaven troop.

CAMPUS SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

PARKING near urban campuses is a universal headache, and the city of San Jose took matters in hand to defend local residents by banning all cars parked on streets adjacent to the campus except those with resident permits. California State/San Jose administrators took matters into its own hands, preparing a lawsuit against the city which claims this is preferential and discriminatory—which, of course, is what some people would call the whole parking classification system on most city campuses.

EXERCISE has gained more than time and attention. At least nine campuses have created Paracourses, "innovative exercise trails that let users gain physical fitness in the outdoors while working at their own pace," according to National On Campus Report. A San Francisco firm, Paracourse, Ltd., provides plans, signs, and fittings (cost $2,000 for the 18-station course which features different exercise routines at each stop. These range from jumping jacks to chin-ups and includes walking a balance beam. The tour combines walking and jogging as its recommended travel between stations.

INFORMATION of any sort may be had at Bowling Green State University by calling Campus Fact Line which averages more than 60,000 inquiry calls each academic quarter. One of the most successful of such services, the Bowling Green operation has served as a model for similar systems elsewhere. Operators are on duty from 10 a.m. until midnight, Monday through Friday, and noon until midnight over the weekend. Campus Fact Line has been in operation since 1971. Similar but newer, the information service at the University of Wisconsin says it is now averaging about 500 calls each week.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER Bureau at Drake needed more volunteers and placed notices about itself with each candy bar in campus vending machines. Results: students inquiring about volunteer work have increased 15%.

QUALITY CONTROL is a term which is creeping into academic administration and seems to mean a variety of things. At West Virginia University for instance, seniors receive a 14-page survey questionnaire whose results tabulate opinions of university instruction, its quality and effectiveness.

CAREER AID is a growing area of campus service. At Beloit a "Real World Contact Center" is helping students make contact with professional organizations in their areas of academic interest, noting that these groups are the ones students would eventually join anyway—why not now for a look at the real world?

EQUESTRIAN INTEREST on campus is on the rise. With the horse population at an all-time high, it may be natural that riding skill courses are increasing in number as are the number of schools which offer bed and board for students and their horses.

VACATION ON CAMPUS has been mentioned previously in this column, but the idea was expanded by the travel section of the Miami (Florida) News in a feature on the possibilities of vacationing on college campuses across the country as a low-cost way for budget-minded travelers to cut vacation expenses. The United States Travel Service of the Commerce Department, the federal government's tourism office, is promoting accommodations in university operated motels and dormitories as well as activities and attractions on each campus.

ENERGY CONSERVATION is taking many forms. At the University of Illinois campus vending machines dispensing soft drinks in cans are being replaced with machines dispensing either returnable and reusable bottles, or paper cups.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS continue to increase, according to the report of the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States. Three new programs have emerged for every one discontinued between 1971 and 1976.

JOB PROSPECTS IN CANADA for college graduates are the worst since the depression says a report in a recent Chronicle of Higher Education. In Ontario alone teachers are in such oversupply as to cause the closing of some university facilities in education (as some U.S. schools are doing). Predictions are that the overabundance of college graduates on the Canadian job market will be noticeable for the next ten to fifteen years. The number of entrants to the labor market with some college level education has risen dramatically in the past decade and will continue to do so—causing the scarcer so-called "good" jobs to be more difficult to find.

COMPUTER GRAMMAR is the subject of a National Science Foundation funded study to be conducted by a professor at Central Michigan University.

CAMPUS ALCOHOLISM receives a great deal of attention these days. Some institutions have shown concern and are offering non-credit seminars in alcohol education, though at the same time, non-credit courses in mixology and wine tasting are enjoying considerable popularity. A California study notes more alcohol (mostly beer) advertising in student newspapers, and the George Washington University alcohol education committee has asked the food services to allow students to purchase beer with their meal coupons.

ORIENTATION to a new area is often as great a challenge to a new faculty member as it is to an incoming freshman. To help new faculty members "better understand the relationship between their particular academic disciplines and the state's assets and comprehensive needs" the University of Georgia provided a two-day bus tour of the state.

FRESHMAN HANDBOOKS have served campus newcomers for generations, but their contents cover more than the manners and mores they once did. Today's book is larger and often includes pictures as well as an index of addresses, phone numbers, and data on personal interests. On one campus each student's height is included—just in case you've only seen her sitting in a class and want to know how tall she is!

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION—the numerous city, county, and state technical schools launched in the past decade—is growing more rapidly than almost any other segment of education today. These schools are attracting more students, and their placement of graduates often reaches a whopping 97%.

PIZZA sales moved into the dormitory at the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire where campus officials decided that vending machines were not adequately serving student needs and so started food sales from dormitory reception desks. Beside pizza, one can buy sodas, dairy products, and sandwiches.

VIDEOTAPED DISCIPLINE methods for teachers produced by the University of Kentucky College of Education and the Office of Instructional Resources are believed to be the first such in the country. Both tapes are available on loan.

ECHOES ON ENGLISH: While we complain of the inability of students to handle the English language as well as they once did, listen to these echoes from the past offered by Josephine Speark, Associate Professor of Education at Indiana University. 1890: "In the complaints drawn up by colleges against high schools, it is the inability to write passably correct English that is most severely complained of." 1910: "It is the common complaint among businessmen that young people seeking employment are not well grounded in the fundamentals." 1917: "From every college in the country goes up the cry, 'Our freshmen can't spell, can't punctuate!'" 1965: "The English language is dying because it is not being taught."

HAIR DRYERS have been added to the men's gym at Missouri, an administrator commenting that the University had been unfair to men with long hair.

TAPE TYCOONS are appearing on campus—enterprising persons who pay as many as 100 students to take usable notes or tape class lectures which are reproduced for sale. On one campus, lecture notes sell for $18 a semester, verbatim notes, $40, and notes plus tapes, $125.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS were permitted to enroll in college credit courses at the University of Toledo during the city's public school financial crisis last fall, and the program was continued even when the public schools reopened.

QUALITY EDUCATION is the emphasis of a campaign launched by the University of Colorado student government, pointing also to the need for research support funds and efforts to keep tuition costs down. Fact sheets have been circulated among students and appear on bulletin boards urging readers to write legislators expressing their desire for quality over quantity on the Boulder campus.

FOOD CONSERVATION is receiving the attention of the Coca-Cola Company which has selected five schools (Yale, Stanford, Michigan State, South Carolina, Indiana) to compete to see which can waste the least food. An Indiana official comments that in serving 50,000 meals each day, an ounce of food left on a plate adds up to 1.5 tons of waste a day, nearly 8 tons a week.

PART-TIME STUDENTS are still a large percentage of the educational population, especially at the graduate level. Total enrollment in graduate programs has remained steady though the number of applications for graduate school has decreased slightly, according to the Council of Graduate Schools.

VITICULTURE AND ENOLOGY are being studied by more than 150,000 students on 600 campuses—the study of grape cultivation and the study of wine respectively.

RENT-A-TEACHER is what they're calling the increase in part-time faculty, according to the Chronicle of Higher Education. In four years, it states, the number of full-time faculty members on the nation's campuses has increased 4% while the number of part-time professors has leaped up by 38%.

MORE STATISTICS from the National Center for Education Statistics tell us that the percentage of students studying within their home states continues to increase, about 85% at the present time.

BETA RETAINS TOP SPOT

Founders' Scholar Mary Lee Jontz Tells Chapter's Key to Success

Beta's buttons are popping with pride. Expressing the honor the chapter feels at being number one in scholarship is easy; explaining how we got there is more difficult.

We don't study all the time. We have no magic or mathematical formula, no study table for pledges, and there is little or no mention of the importance of grades.

What we do have, collectively and individually is a self-perpetuating realization of the academic purpose of being at Indiana University. It is a concept that may be mentioned outwardly at some point during a year, but mostly it is one that is felt inwardly by each girl.

Surely we have developed a Theta and campus reputation for high scholarship, but it is not this that keeps our grades high. It is more the kind of girl we choose to make up our pledge class . . . those who also have that realization of purpose and seriousness of intention that is developed and nurtured in four years of chapter life.

We have a large 24-hour quiet room, a test file, a scholarship banquet, a tutor list and an active scholarship committee. However, all these factors combined would not be sufficient in the absence of that inner motivation that is perpetuated year after year in rush as we seek those kinds of girls we think should be Thetas.

But Beta Thetas are not all work and no play. We hope we have found a happy medium between developing academically and developing socially . . . at least that is our goal.

The Federal-State partnership, once one of the greatest strengths of our nation, has gone wrong. With it, the American System of higher education has suffered increasing and possibly irretrievable damage.

Historically, of course, many good things have come from the federal-state partnership in the American educational system, a partnership which spans the eighteenth century land grants, the nineteenth century Morrill and Hatch Acts and the twentieth century Servicemen's Readjustment Act. But it is significant that while objectives ancillary to education may have been served by these programs, their primary purpose was to foster education as such.

Today, the increasing intervention of the federal government into higher education's internal affairs poses one of the greatest problems facing higher education. As Harvard's President Bok observed recently, this intrusion may take the form of simply extending familiar pieces of social legislation, such as the wage-hour law, to higher education, or it may be by specific regulation of university operations, as in the Buckley Amendment of Title IX. Today federal influence strikes directly at the central academic functions of colleges and universities and oftentimes relegates educational considerations to a lower point on our value scale.

Traditionally, the American concept of federalism has been one of shared powers between the central and the state governments of this nation. The values inherent in this concept were stated by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental relations as "diversity, pluralism, experimentation, protection from arbitrary majoritarianism and over-centralization, and a greater degree of citizen participation."

The founding fathers spelled out specifically in the Constitution what powers the federal government should have. All powers not precisely delegated to the federal government were left to the individual states and to the people. One area that was not delegated to the central government—but was reserved to the states—was education. The Constitution contains no specific authority for the federal government to manage our educational affairs.

That freedom from centralized control is one of the great strengths of our American educational system. In other nations, course content, books and study materials are mandated by the central government. The political leaders decide what young people will learn and how it will be taught.

But in America, control of our schools has traditionally been in the hands of ordinary citizens—people who serve on school boards and such bodies as boards of regents and trustees. There is no decree from on high that every school must be organized in the same format. Citizens decide those matters for themselves, and they should. After all, they are our children and our schools, supported by our taxes.

This decentralization of authority has led to a healthy diversity in American education. Unfettered by central control, our schools developed in a variety of structures, offering a wide range of learning opportunities second to none in the world.

The spectrum of American education, from reading, writing and arithmetic for youngsters to our most sophisticated graduate programs, is unmatched, and the results of our system have been spectacular.

American education is the scientist probing the mysteries of the universe, the scholar developing new knowledge, the young adult being trained in the college classroom, and the child of six learning to add and subtract.

Our system discourages uniformity and constraint in favor of variety and freedom. It helps solve problems and meet people's needs. It's a vigorous and vibrant system, and it's that way largely because it has been allowed to develop, free from the stifling structure of centralization and conformity.

Testifying in 1958 before a Congressional Committee on Education, a spokesman for the American Council on Education stated: "I think we ought to be very careful in this country to keep our control of education in the hands of the states, as we always have, and it seems to me that the Federal Government, in whatever it does, ought to keep that very thoroughly in mind."

The history of the 1960's and the 1970's indicates rather clearly that this admonition fell on deaf ears. For it was during this period that intrusions by all three branches of the federal government into higher education were vastly accelerated.

The effect of this burgeoning federal intrusion into education has been to severely restrict educationally based decision-making and thus to sharply curtail the options available to strengthen and enhance our schools. The system that served us so well for two hundred years is in jeopardy, and the threat is accelerating.

Oscar Wilde observed that the worst work is done with the best of intentions. I think that applies to the problem of governmental intervention in education.

The purpose behind most of the government's involvement is to correct social injustice, protect civil liberties, and insure human rights. Those are admirable goals, pursued I am sure, with the best of intentions. The problems develop, however, when these social goals are sought in an absolutist single-minded sense with little concern for educational values.

The government and particularly the regulation writers with their egalitarian zeal have undermined the ability of many colleges and universities to fulfill their educational responsibilities.

All of you are familiar with the giant jumble of Washington alphabet soup we know as the federal bureaucracy. There's the OSHS, HEW, OEO, EEO, OOE, HUD and many others too numerous to mention. Emanating from these agencies is a constant stream of rules, regulations, guidelines, quotas, mandates, orders, directives and assorted other commands, the total effect of which is to severely limit and restrict the management of our everyday affairs.

But these regulatory agencies are just the tip of the iceberg. Today the federal courts, Congress, and the executive branch arrange and rearrange society in a manner never dreamed of when the republic was founded. To comply with what Stephen K. Bailey, vice president of the American Council on Education calls "new social norms," higher education has been forced to divert some of its attention from teaching, research and service.

We have become record keepers, letter writers, report compilers and quota watchers. We have had to channel enormous amounts of money, time, and energy into monitoring, interpreting, understanding, and adhering to mountains of complex mandates, orders and directives. Bailey says many of the federal laws that have been applied to education "attempt to achieve social ends only marginally related to the educational objectives" of higher education. The federal government, then, is using colleges and universities as instruments for the pursuit of social goals that sometimes have little relation to quality education.

We can all agree that equal pay for equal work should be a protected right. The Equal Pay Act of 1963 was adopted by Congress as an amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act. It was designed to prevent discrimination on the basis of sex among workers performing fundamentally the same tasks. This Act, designed primarily for industrial workers was recently applied to university faculty members. While all faculty members may have the same job description—teaching, research, or service—there is a world of difference between the work of a beginning assistant professor and a research professor with 30 years experience. Applying equal pay standards to assembly line workers is one thing; however, it is another to apply them to academe.

Equal opportunity and fair procedures are the right of every person, and higher education is fully committed to these ideals. But I fear that governmental mandates in these areas may in the end cost far more than those goals are served.

Let me give you another example.

In 1961, the courts ruled that entering and remaining in a state supported college or university was a property right protected by the Fourteenth Amendment. Previously, admission to such an institution had been considered a privilege, not a right. This case, Dixon v. Alabama, sounded the death knell for the doctrine of loco parentis and brought the Constitution full scale to the campus.

Subsequent court rulings extended procedural due process requirements to a broad area of educational decision-making, the effect of which was described in a recent Supreme Court dissenting opinion as follows: "If, as seems apparent, the court will require due process procedures whenever such routine school decisions are challenged, the impact upon public education will be serious indeed. The discretion and judgment of federal courts across the land often will be substituted for that of the 50 state legislatures, the 14,000 school boards and the 2,000,000 teachers who heretofore have been responsible for the administration of the American public school system."

As a result of these cases, the judgments of our faculty committees, department heads, deans, vice presidents, and my judgment as a university president are now being second-guessed by federal district court judges on such issues as terminating employees for incompetence.

The federal courts have been joined in their invasion of the college campus by Congress. Traditionally, federal social legislation has not been applied to state institutions. But in the mid-1960's and early-1970's, Congress amended many of the civil rights, labor, employment and other laws to include the millions employed by state-supported colleges and universities.

This meant that these employees were now covered by and subject to—complex wage and hour, non-discrimination, health and safety, and other federal requirements. These are laudable values. The problem begins, however, with the process of determining what these laws mean, to whom they apply, what they do and don't do, and how they will be enforced. In our system of government this task falls largely to what I call the fourth branch of government, the sprawling bureaucracy. It is the job of these anonymous and unaccountable federal employees to administer the laws of this nation. They do this mainly by producing and promulgating massive mountains of rules, regulation, and requirements that only they can read and understand.

Someone has said that government bureaucrats are to a law as hot air is to a balloon. They take a simple, straightforward law and they add to it and build on it and inflate and expand and elaborate on it until they have something that is so complicated and muddled that it is impossible to understand. The end product is called a regulation.

For example, thirteen lines in the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 have been translated into voluminous regulations appearing in several places in the Code of Federal Regulations. Theoretically, regulations tell you what you must do, but sometimes they are inconsistent.

Last November 23 (1976) the Civil Service Commission and the departments of justice and labor published in the Federal Register the practices and procedures they wanted employers, including colleges and universities, to follow in preventing employment discrimination. On November 24, the next day, another agency—the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission—republished guidelines on employment discrimination because it did not agree with the Civil Service Commission and the labor and justice departments. There were at least three major differences between the two sets of guidelines. Which ones do we follow?

Of course the ultimate goal of regulation is conformity. Take the case of Hillsdale College, a 133 year old independent school in Michigan with an enrollment of about 1,000 and a splendid record for experimentation and innovation. It routinely admitted blacks before the Civil War and was one of the few colleges in America to graduate women. Hillsdale has never accepted federal money for fear of jeopardizing its independence. It has relied entirely on fees and private support for financing. But about 10 percent of Hillsdale's student body, about 100 students—do receive veterans benefits or federally guaranteed loans. Under Section 86.2 of HEW's regulations issued under the Title 9 of the Higher Education Act of 1972, this is construed as federal assistance.

Accordingly, HEW contends that tiny Hillsdale is subject to every stipulation and rule that applies to every college and university that accepts federal money. And HEW wants Hillsdale to conform to its policies covering everything from admissions, to dormitory hours, to physical education classes, to off-campus housing. All because some Hillsdale students get veterans benefits or federally guaranteed loans.

The president of Hillsdale compares the situation to the government nationalizing a supermarket because someone bought groceries with a Social Security check. No final decision has been made in this case.

A few years ago, the Library of Congress tried to determine just how many government agencies, authorities, departments and bureaus have a hand in regulating higher education. The final count was an astounding 439 different program authorities; plus a labyrinth of congressional committees that no one has yet been able to sort out.

Without doubt, there is much overlapping and duplication among these agencies. Money and time and effort and energy are being wasted. Complying with the dictates of these agencies and departments has cost educational institutions untold millions of dollars and countless hours of tedious work.

To keep track of the mounds of paper-work, we have had to invent whole new systems for receiving, completing, monitoring, filing, and cataloguing. We have been forced to compose, print and distribute volumes of letters, booklets, brochures, reports, notices and assorted other materials. We have become so bogged down in trying to cope with this morass of paper-work that sometimes we feel as though we're losing sight of what we're supposed to be doing—teaching and inquiring into the nature of things.

The American Council on Education surveyed six institutions to find out what they spend on federally mandated social programs. In 1965, these institutions each spent about $438,000 on these programs. In 1975 that figure had risen to $1,300,000.

The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges has estimated that institutions of higher education spend an average of four percent of their entire budget satisfying the requirements of social legislation. At the University of Georgia, that figures out to about $4 million a year.

We have to spend this at a time when, on a national basis, our institutions are losing faculty members because we can't pay them adequately; when purchases of books and periodicals have had to be cut back for our libraries; when we can't afford to supply our researchers with the full resources they need; when we have been forced to eliminate courses and reduce the number of visiting lectureships and cut travel funds because we don't have enough money.

I strongly repeat—the single-minded actions of the federal bureaucracy in pursuit of absolutist values are deterring our colleges and universities from their basic mission—to educate. We are so hamstrung by regulations, so entangled by red tape, so strapped for money, so beleaguered by restrictions and limitations that our ability to teach and convey knowledge may be jeopardized. It is a situation that should be of great alarm to every citizen of this nation.

As if Congress and the courts were not causing enough consternation on campuses, the executive branch of government also has its hands in education. Through executive orders tying strings to federal money, the executives have advanced federal infringement on educational autonomy.

As President Derek Bok rightly pointed out in his recent annual report, universities are now dependent upon federal funds to the extent that compliance with conditions for receipt of federal funds has the same effect as mandatory rules and laws. Regulations, not debated and voted on in public forum by elected representatives, come to have the force of law that evolves from the Constitutional process.

As with legislation, the real villain in executive actions is the employee who sets up the machinery for administering the orders. One example will suffice: President Ford issued executive order 11914 which in effect prohibits discrimination against handicapped students. The order itself is plain and straightforward and takes about one page. But HEW compiled a volume of complicated regulations to enforce the order. Those regulations set many conditions for higher education. Colleges could be forbidden to construct new buildings in certain places if they pose difficulties for the handicapped. If a college cannot provide a handicapped student access to a program on campus, it must take the program to the student off campus.

And how do the regulations define handicapped? According to HEW, handicapped includes drug addicts, alcoholics, and perhaps even homosexuals. HEW says these people must be given special treatment and preference at the expense of students with no physical or mental impairment, as well as students with the more common disabilities. The regulations could force schools to discontinue internships and clinical work if handicapped students cannot take advantage of these opportunities. For example, the University of Georgia Law School might have to end its beneficial legal assistance program because the county courthouse is not specially equipped for handicapped people. Universities may also have to end programs of study in foreign countries because facilities in those nations aren't accessible to the handicapped.

Colleges would be required to alter and furnish—at great expense—virtually every campus residence unit to provide handicapped students with adequate accommodations.

College employment counselors could not advise handicapped students toward more restrictive career objectives than they do the non-handicapped, even if there were virtually no possibility the handicapped student could get the job.

Surely President Ford did not intend for his executive order to be so broadly interpreted.

Fortunately, wiser heads have prevailed and these regulations have been recalled for review. They will probably be substantially revised to eliminate some of the ambiguities. The frightening thing is that something like this could ever have been seriously advanced.

Higher education had taken substantial steps toward this end long before the executive order was issued and we will continue to do all that we reasonably can along those lines voluntarily. The problem in the proposed regulation however, was the failure of the regulation writers to engage in a very simple cost-benefit analysis with proper weight being assigned to educational values.

A Chinese philosopher advised that you should govern a great nation as you would cook a small fish: don't overdo it. I submit that we have overdone it in the matter of federal regulation of education. We have overdone it to the point that we are jeopardizing one of our most valuable national assets—our diversified, creative, free American educational system.

Lest I should sound too apocalyptic, let me note a few hopeful signs on the horizon. . . .

In several recent rulings, the Supreme Court has backed away from procedural due process requirements in colleges and universities. The court has said that the judiciary isn't, in most instances, the proper forum to review management decisions in such areas as tenure and the hiring and firing of professors.

A committee of educators that studied governmental intrusion in education reported that the federal government is now exercising its influence in every important area of university activity, and that the costs of complying with federal regulations have risen on many campuses to millions of dollars a year. The committee strongly recommended the creation of a well financed watchdog group to monitor Congress and attempt to discourage legislation that would infringe on educational sovereignty.

Harold L. Enarson, the president of Ohio State University, decried what he termed "staggering" dollar cost of complying with federal regulations.

"I see debilitation—a draining away of time and energy from the primary task of teaching and research," Enarson said. "I see bureaucratization—the entanglement by and with government in ways which serve neither of us well."

There are hopeful signs: sponsorship of legislation by some members of the Georgia congressional delegation to give Congress immediate veto power over onerous regulations proposed by federal agencies; and another proposal to give Congress 30 days to review and object to proposed federal regulations before they go into effect.

Social goals, although important, must not be pursued by federal agencies in a single minded way. Educational values, produced by our long-time federal-state partnership must be preserved.

The growing awareness of the dangers of governmental interference in education, and the proposals to curb it, offer hope. It is no exaggeration to say that our educational future depends upon it.

. . . I am convinced that today is in its own special way a day of crisis. The problems we face are those of adequate food and fiber production for a hungry world, of energy for our future needs, of population growth that must be controlled, and of interpersonal and international relationships which must be made to work.

The answers to our questions, the solutions to our problems will of necessity come, as they have in the past, from our institutions of learning. Our diversity, our ability to act qualitatively, and our freedom to search separate ways have led us to correct responses through other times of peril. I am only pleading that we not cripple the system that has served us in the past when we so desperately need it for the future.

Introducing

Joan Luddy Mossey, Gamma Zeta, Connecticut is the new Alumnae President in the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which is District VI. She will be the resource person and guiding light for 11 clubs and two alumnae chapters.

Joan Mossey had wide experience in Theta alumnae work in Kentucky where she was President, Vice-President, and Secretary of the Louisville Club. Then, moving to Philadelphia, she again became involved with Theta work, this time as a Panhellenic Delegate and area group chairman.

In civic endeavors Joan has participated in leadership roles with Girl Scouts, serving as a cadette leader and member of the Greater Philadelphia Council. In education, she has been on the Scholarship Fund and Guidance Committee of Radnor High School. She is a part-time librarian in the middle school science resource center. Tennis, art, needlepoint and quilting occupy her time as hobbies.

Mae Denbo Hillman, a member of Alpha, and the Diablo Valley Alumnae Chapter has been appointed the new College District President in Dist. IX, Northern California.

Before her family moved to Danville, CA they were fourteen years in Southern California, where Mae was a very active Theta alumna. That family includes husband Jim, who commutes daily to his work in San Francisco; and three children Cindy 14, Scott 12, and Dirk 7. Theta background includes serving as treasurer of the L.A. Westside Thetas, president of El Camino Real Alumnae Club, and vice-president of the Federation of Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae of Southern California. She also helped establish two Panhellenics.

Mae also held a challenging job as a school nurse, working in Watts.

In addition to the long established college chapters at Cal-Berkeley, Nevada, Fresno State, and Pacific, Mae Hillman will supervise the fledgling colony at Stanford, Phi deutron.

Theta Concern

FOUNDATION FANFARE . . . noteworthy notes about noteworthy people, happenings and Kappa Alpha Theta Foundation progress.

A Later-day Founder Honored

On March 23rd, the three Boston, MA alumnae clubs gathered at the Winchester Country Club for dinner to celebrate Theta's Founders' Day. At the same time, they honored another "founder" one of the architects of the Theta Foundation, chartered in 1961, Wilma Trost Shattuck, Psi, Wisconsin. At that time District V's beloved Willie was a member of Grand Council and together with now past president, Norma Jorgensen, also a member of Council then, developed the concept of a fraternity foundation to administer Theta's philanthropic activities. Willie also served as a Foundation trustee and has been busy with many other charitable organizations in and around Boston. Love and Loyalty predominated that evening in March as club members and many out of town guests toasted five founders!

A University Administrator Takes Note

Barbara Tootle, Coordinator of Greek Affairs at Ohio State University recently wrote to Central Office thanking them for sending her the Theta Magazine. She also complimented the Foundation on the Community Involvement project whereby grants are given to worthy philanthropies on behalf of Kappa Alpha Theta in many areas. Alpha Gamma chapter was praised for its Service oriented program. We are always happy to pass on such nice words and hope all Thetas read the Magazine too!

Bingo!

Gamma Tau, at the University of Tulsa, sponsored a bingo party together with the Sigma Chis and forwarded a check to the Foundation for their profits. They wished it had been more, but the love and good wishes of an enthusiastic group of Thetas who were happy knowing their good time meant help for someone else, makes monetary value of less importance.

Diners Aid Foundation

Delta Sigma Chapter at Ball State University, annually holds a spaghetti supper with Sigma Nu fraternity, preparing the spaghetti, salad, garlic bread and supplying soft drinks to the diners. A handsome profit resulted in 1977 which was sent to the Foundation for the Institute. Delta Sigma won the coveted Forward Award at the 1976 Grand Convention.

TS is LM

Among the newest Life Members of the Foundation is Laurie McGregor, Gamma deuteran, Ohio-Wesleyan, who also happens to be our youngest ever. As a matter of fact, Laurie has been an outstanding traveling Secretary for the fraternity this year, having graduated in 1977. This makes another first—the first traveling secretary to become an LM while still "in office." Since the Traveling Secretary program is supported by the Foundation, it was most gratifying to receive Laurie's contribution, attached to a coupon from the Magazine with a note which thanked the Foundation "for providing me with such a marvelous opportunity."

Infant Hearing Assessment

A recent newsletter from the Institute of Logopedics has on its front page an item entitled, "Do You Hear What I Hear?" pointing out the Institute's complete facilities for aiding the very young child with hearing loss to those of the older generations who need assistance in adjusting to a world where sound has diminished for them. 1977 marks the 25th year that formal audiological services have been available at the Institute.

Grant Aids Special School

Alpha Theta Chapter, University of Texas, received a community involvement grant in 1976 for their continued support of Soul Camp at the Rosewood School. A substantial part of the money was used to purchase books for the school library and additional funds were set aside to use for field trips for these 4th and 5th graders. Rosewood Soul Camp is sponsored by Alpha Theta and helps less fortunate girls enjoy educational and fun activities.

Direct Mail Appeal Pays Off

The Foundation trustees are pleased with the response to the initial direct mail appeal to all Thetas. Sincere thanks for your wonderful support which enables us to do great things in the name of Kappa Alpha Theta!

LIFE MEMBER UPDATE

Realizing that there is always an element of risk involved when putting lists of names into print, the Foundation nonetheless published the Life Members roster in the summer issue of the Magazine in 1977 because we wanted to give special recognition to those who have contributed $1,000 or more to our philanthropic programs, or have made bequests in that amount. We are sorry to say that it did turn up some errors, both typographical and in our records. However, we hope these have all been corrected, some by the gracious ladies themselves and herewith we are proud to list them properly. In addition, the starred names indicate seven new Life Members added since our up-date in the Winter issue.

Now the City of Los Angeles has recognized Carlyle Hunt with a Certificate of Merit from the Human Relations Commission in appreciation of her outstanding volunteer service in the Los Angeles community. Her many activities cover a wide range of services to the Red Cross and Veterans' Hospitals as well as the Recording for the Blind.

GRAND PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This past year has been an outstanding one for fraternities in general and for Theta in particular as records have been broken and milestones passed. The success of the June, 1977 "Rush Roundup" Leadership Conference became evident as results of fall rush were tabulated. Theta college chapters gained an unprecedented 11 percent increase in numbers pledged compared to the previous year. Another statistic showed an even higher increase in the number of pledges fulfilling initiation requirements, giving an indication of the consideration that went into the choosing of these new members.

Interest in Greek membership continues to grow. As total membership quotas are raised, Theta chapters realize that larger chapters do not necessarily mean losing the closeness that is an integral part of sisterhood. The input provided by a wide diversity of personalities with common goals and purposes only increases the opportunity for growth by association. As facilities are outgrown, chapter house living may very well become a privilege for upperclassmen only, but careful planning and wise leadership which utilizes the contribution of each member can make it possible to offer the unique experience of membership to an ever greater number of young women.

Not only are our chapters in a growth period but Theta is being sought to establish chapters in all areas of the country. Phi deutron Colony was pledged at Stanford University on February 23, after an absence from that campus since 1944. The resurgence of interest in Greek membership among women students at the University of Connecticut is allowing Theta to recolonize Gamma Zeta Chapter in September, 1978. September will also see the colonization of Epsilon Zeta Colony at Ole Miss at the University of Mississippi. Several other campuses are being seriously considered as the area of extension is one of the most active within the fraternity at this time.

With over 100,000 initiates, Kappa Alpha Theta is growing at an accelerating rate each year. To accommodate this growth and the ensuing additional work load of the fraternity's professional staff, Central Office has been enlarged during this past year. An investment counselor has been retained to provide expertise and continuity in the management of funds and an automated accounting system for general treasury funds has been implemented to assure instant, accurate record keeping.

The automated chapter accounting systems program for college chapters has been expanded. Over half the college chapters will be participating in the coming year, with all chapters taking part in the program during the coming biennium.

As our numbers grow and operations become computerized, the individual takes on added significance. The 1978 Grand Convention theme, "With Love and Careful Thought" can be a continuing theme for our fraternity. We are justifiably proud of Theta's heritage of excellence which comes to us because of the love and careful thought of those thousands who have gone before us. Now the challenge is for us, as individuals, to protect and build on that heritage for those thousands who will follow. Theta's strength is in the collegian who cares enough to reach for her own and her sisters' full potential, the officers who serves with dedication, the alumna who writes a recommendation, the young woman who juggles family and career responsibilities to find time to advise a college chapter, and in the member who may not be able to participate in activities but who responds with generosity to the Foundation's drive for leadership and service funds. Whether it be the heart, the hand or the mind, each individual has something to offer to promote future growth and give future direction to Kappa Alpha Theta . . . all with love and careful thought.

Marie A. Fitz
Grand President

To Theta Parents: Your daughter's magazine is sent to her home address while she is in college and we hope that you enjoy seeing it. But if she is no longer in college and is not living at home, please send her new permanent address to Kappa Alpha Theta, Central Office, Suite 400, 801 Davis St., Evanston, Illinois 60201.

Palm Drive on the campus of Stanford University beckons Thetas once again. Phi deuteron was colonized in February, replacing Phi chapter which was the first women's fraternity at Stanford, and which left the campus with other sororities in 1944.
